

The commission was to create a signage artwork which celebrated the diverse cultures within this large primary school in Barking.

The artwork is a row of children's feet with each pair coloured in the flag colours of several countries from where the children arrived, for example white, green and orange which represents India, Ireland and Niger. The feet are walking on the world but also have that remembered feeling; legs dangling under desks, feet queuing for lunch, lining up after play, standing in the school hall.

photography workshop

